

“Forests are the world’s air conditioning system”

2021-08-19 06:05:31

“Forests are the world’s air conditioning system – the lungs of the planets. And we are on the verge of switching it off.” – Prince Charles. Blossoms observes the week-long Van Mahotsav every year with the common aim of spreading awareness on planting trees. The digital, as well as handmade placards and posters prepared by our students, speak at length about our realization of the need for immediate steps for the protection and conservation of our forests. Moving ahead with this realization, our students also planted saplings in their localities; not with the expectation of sitting in their shades themselves but for the cause of Mother Earth and the environment, so that the system enjoys enough stability and backup.

Notice Header“Forests are the world’s air conditioning system" Notice Content “Forests are the world’s air conditioning system – the lungs of the planets. And we are on the verge of switching it off.” – Prince Charles. Blossoms observes the week-long Van Mahotsav every year with the common aim of spreading awareness on planting trees. The digital, as well as handmade placards and posters prepared by our students, speak at length about our realization of the need for immediate steps for the protection and conservation of our forests. Moving ahead with this realization, our students also planted saplings in their localities; not with the expectation of sitting in their shades themselves but for the cause of Mother Earth and the environment, so that the system enjoys enough stability and backup. Notice Date:2021-08-19 06:05:31